

Abstract

A transitional feeding tool for individuals with oral sensory problems comprises a handle and a food-carrying platform carried by the handle. The food-carrying platform has a top surface and a bottom surface extending along an axis and at least one blunt projection extending radially from the bottom surface of the platform. The projection is adapted to contact the tongue to provide oral tactile stimulation as the tool is advanced over the tongue to deliver food.